Destroying Our Connection to God with Gene Editing Injections

Evidence of VMAT2 Deletion in the shots

GREG REESE
MAY 21

More than a hundred years ago, Rudolf Steiner wrote that. "In the future, we will eliminate the soul with medicine. Under the 'healthy point of view', there will be a virus."

A viral video which claims to be a leaked 2005 presentation to the DOD by American geneticist, Dean Hamer, shows a man briefing a room of men about the VMAT2 gene, the "Excuse me, on the left over here, we have individuals who are religious fundamentalists, religious fanatics. And this is the expression, RTP

In 2021, former NEWS anchor, Ryan Harper, claimed in the San Francisco Chronicle that he created this video as a short film. But has provided no clear evidence to substantiate

"Well, it turns out at least one gene that's involved in spirituality has now been identified. It's one of many different players. The next step is to see if we can delete it."

And in 2004, Hamer published the book, "The God Gene: How Faith Is Hardwired into our Genes," where in he argues that a variation in the VMAT2 gene dictates one's openness to spirituality.

Not only is this information accurate, but it appears to have been deployed. In a recent article by Dr Ariyana Love, it is shown that this technology has existed for years.

The VMAT2 gene is a protein that carries several vital neurotransmitters to synapses in the brain. It basically controls the central nervous system. Deleting it, known as a knockout, is a VMAT2 deletion is accomplished using the "SLC18A2 cDNA ORF clone" where "cDNA" is "Complimentary DNA." Which is used in human cloning and genetically modifying an organism.

In a 2020 study on mice, VMAT2 gene deletion caused schizophrenia. In a 2022 study it caused Parkinson's disease. In the American Journal of Human Genetics, a study on drosophila

VMAT2 deletion also causes fearfulness, psychiatric disorders, cardiac arrhythmia, cancer, and accelerated aging. While it's unlikely that these sadistic mad scientists can cut u

At our child's school the RSE lessons are of a spoof religion called Pastafarianism, with belief in a God which is made of food, spoofing The Lord's Prayer and other religious texts, which humans need to drive out demonic forces.

They are depraved and mentally ill lunatics who will suffer accordingly I hope. That anyone could even contemplate such a thing as this human gene deletion is beyond comprehension. It will bounce right back on them in some way I expect
